Change is an

Change is in the Air

The cherry depicted on this year's book cover sets the mental stage for our choice of theme: change. Since the cherry has long been associated with education and the cover captures the cherry in each stage of its development, we here at the yearbook office felt that this symbol appropriately represents the changes in education which took place during the '97-'98 school year. Of equal significance, and more befitting a Christian college, is the fact that there is a story handed down from gardeners' lore that Jesus once gave Peter a cherry, reminding him to pay attention to the small details and not to despise little things in order to bring about positive change and growth. We feel that this is more than appropriate, for the '97-'98 school year has brought about several changes which, through a greater understanding of the "little things," have improved the growth taking place here in our classrooms and our community.

The '97-'98 school year, much like the developing cherry on our cover, saw many exciting and innovative changes in the way in which students at Pikeville College were educated. To begin, there was a new president installed during the Fall semester, President Hal Smith. Much like Peter, this new president is paying attention to the "smaller" aspects of education, by trying to integrate faculty, staff, and student body more fully; by setting higher, tougher goals for the future; and by recognizing that the small changes taking place in each of us as professors, workers, and individual students can be used as a catalyst for real growth on a much larger scale than that of the mere individual.

Another area to which the cherry theory applies developed when earlier in the school year Pikeville College once again proved that as an institution it realized the needs not only of the student population, but the community as well: it opened the Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine. The school, which accepted sixty students its first year, has a strong emphasis on holistic medicine, which has at its very core an emphasis on treating the entire patient rather than treating one particular problem. The truly exciting thing is that here once again, much to the staff's relief, the cherry as a symbol of education, attention to smaller detail, and of course, change, is applicable. As these prospective doctors begin to learn their craft, they are being taught to pay attention to the small, infinite details of medicine, whether it be how to treat one disease as opposed to another or how to provide the powerfully therapeutic effect of a friendly bedside manner. To acquire an understanding of both, all of this year's themes come into play.

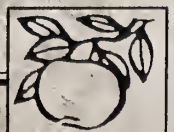

Finally, we would like to mention the most obvious but often overlooked area of change and education in your own life: your experiences here at Pikeville College! Whether you are a seasoned senior or a freshman just starting your educational adventure, we invite you to explore this yearbook with a sense of anticipation at what you may see, with tears over what you may remember, and most of all with joy at what you have shared here with everyone who is connected with this college. Each day here has affected your life, and the changes brought about are going to carry on with you well beyond the time on "the hill." This is your yearbook, your legacy, documenting your changes, your education, and your growth. On behalf of the entire staff, the editor, and the office of External Affairs, we hope you enjoy what you see and experience between these covers.

--C.J. Robinson

But no matter what the scale, whether grand or small, change is necessary for the successful growth of any institution, group, or person.

Opening

At the medical school convocation, Hal Smith addresses the crowd.

John B. Crosby, JD, Executive Director of the American Osteopathic Association, speaks of the importance of the medical program and how it will affect the area.

Chris Ratliff, State Representative, presents the PCSOM with a check for $800,000 to further the school.

Change Through Leadership and Vision: The P.C.S.O.M.

On September 11, 1997, Pikeville College once again proved it is a catalyst for progressive community change and improvement as it officially opened the 19th school of osteopathic medicine in the United States. Present at the event, which served the dual purposes of celebrating the massive work completed and of giving to the many community leaders who made the school a possibility, was an audience of doctors, political dignitaries, and of course, students.

Gathered in Booth Auditorium, amid a sea of hope and thanks, one couldn't help but feel that once again, something very special and unique to Pikeville College and the surrounding areas of Appalachia was taking place. From across the nation, the first sixty students of the Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine (or PCSOM), sat entranced as the speakers stressed the importance of their future and the wide-spread effect the next four years would have not only on them, but the people of this area as well.

As future physicians, they were encouraged to involve themselves fully in this next phase of their development by becoming compassionate, capable practitioners who would one day minister to the wounds and ails of the people of the region from which so many of their number had come.

The speakers who were present to commemorate the convocation of the school were an impressive gathering of individuals from every possible vocation and calling. They included lawyers, members of the clergy, local business people, countless community supporters, faculty and students of Pikeville College, and representatives of other colleges. Regardless of their personal background, political affiliation, or level of ability, the speakers contributed some of their unique talent, time, and effort to help bring about what is now a reality nestled among the hills of Eastern Kentucky. Each selflessly helped to usher in a new era, not only in the history of Pikeville College, but the history of the region as well.

--C.J. Robinson

Hal Smith presents plaques to G. Chad and Julianne Perry, Burlin and Jean Coleman, and former president Bill Owens and his wife, Jackie, who played a vital role in the founding of Pikeville's medical school.

Changing Faces

October 23rd, 1997, saw a change of face when Harold "Hal" Smith was inaugurated as the 16th president of Pikeville College. Prior to being named president, Mr. Smith served as the vice-president for development at Muskingum College in New Concord, Ohio. He is succeeding William H. Owens as president of Pikeville College. Owens retired after twelve years of service.

Prior to his position at Muskingum College, Mr. Smith held several positions at Centre College in Danville, KY, including vice-president and dean of students, dean of admissions, and lecturer in management. He was also an area representative for Centre College in Washington, D.C., the city where he was a graduate student and resident advisor at American University. Smith holds the MBA degree from American University and an AB from Centre College.

Smith was raised in Southgate in Northern Kentucky. He is married to the former Karen Willis of Louisville and they have three children: Amy, Andrew, and Anne-Cameron.

Hal Smith will continue Pikeville's tradition of excellence in leadership, proving the more things change the more they stay the same.

--Jackie Layne

For 109 years, Pikeville College has served this region and provided thousands of students an opportunity to prepare for the future. And, Pikeville College has served well -- very well. My goals are to continue in that tradition and to enhance and to help make Pikeville College even stronger, and even more accessible, for the people of this region.

-- Hal Smith

The candidates who ran for Pikeville College's Mountain Laurel Queen were: Front: Nicole Matney, Missy Ratliff, Barbi Narramore, Amanda Austin, Barbi Slone; Middle: Susan Stephens, Jenny Shepherd, Toni Casebolt, Debbie Freeman; Back: Laura Ford, Wendy Justice, Melody Tester, Hershena Hanshaw, Brandi Bryant, Genesis Kilgore, Pam Slone, Beth Slone, and Kitty Branham.

The Changing of the Crown

In the time-honored tradition of Founders' Week, faculty, students, and others congregated at the Derriana Circle to find out who would represent Pikeville College at the Mountain Laurel Festival in Pineville. In an attempt to keep warm, the crowd drank hot chocolate and ate cake while each of the eighteen candidates was introduced. In the end, only one candidate would be chosen.

Junior Jenny Shepherd, a secondary education major, was chosen to represent Pikeville College at the Mountain Laurel Festival. She served as junior class secretary and as cheerleader for the Bears. She also actively participated in the following organizations: FCA, the tennis team, the Pikeville College Chorus, and the Community Choir.

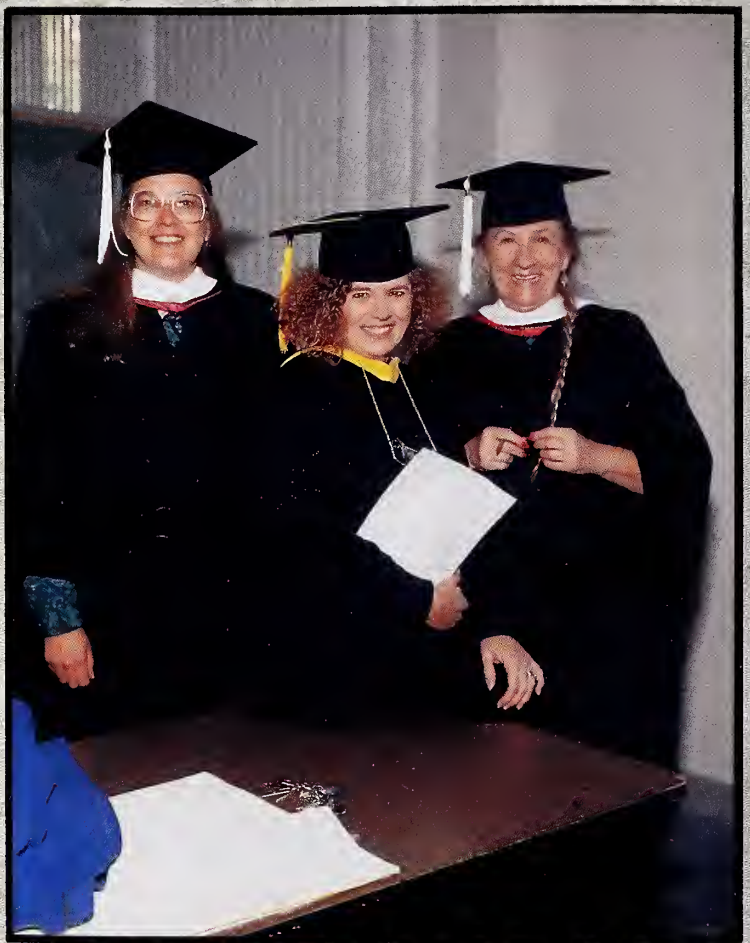

Melody Tester, a sophomore majoring in medical technology, was declared runner-up.

--Amy Parsley

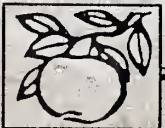

Hal Smith and Thomas Spragen greet each other, one academic to another.

Pam Scott, Kathy Hatfield, and Peggy Davis pose regally in their academic attire.

Scholars gathered to attend the inauguration of Hal Smith.

Showing that staff members can have a good time, John Biery dances the night away.

A Change of Pace

Hal Smith and his wife sign in for a night of fun at the Inaugural Ball.

Charles Whittle and his dancing partner Trip the Light Fantastic.

The Allara Library courtyard was full of activity during the Founders' Week festivities.

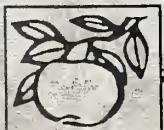

The Lighting of the Campus was just one of the many activities during Founders' Week.

Mark Layne and Tina Hurley did their best to make Jerrica Blevins a mummy.

Kevin Varney and Christie Chapman tried their best to win the Life Savers game.

Founders' Week: A Huge Success

Founders' Week, along with its many activities, has become a tradition here at Pikeville College. The memories created by this past Founders' Week will last a lifetime. Games such as Dizzy-Bat, Mummy Wrap, and the egg toss provided a challenge for all of the participants. The Life Saver Pass game and the Bubble Gum and Grapefruit game also provided entertainment for everyone. Along with the many games, student got to see the crown of the new Mountain Laurel. Faculty and students were also able to enjoy the inaugural Founders' Week Ball. This year's Founders' Week was a huge success.

--Ronnie Spence

Each year the lighting of the Campus includes the "Lighting of the 99."

Students look forward to seeing each passing year lit up in front of the Administration Building.

Simply a Scream

Even though change is evident at Pikeville, tradition still carries on. Each year, all who attend the Halloween Dance have a SCREAMing good time. All participants in the Halloween Dance enjoyed themselves, whether they dressed up or just danced. This year, Pikeville got the opportunity to see a table with chairs, Bonnie and Clyde, and Scream characters.

Jackie Layne, J.J. Walker, Sarah Kincaid (Darth Vader), Amy Parsley, Shannon Lockard, and Amy Beth McCoy stop for a photo before the Halloween Dance.

Proudly clowning around is Shawna Waugh.

Susan Stevens and Shane Staton look as if they walked off the set of Arabian Nights.

These dancers are proving that all can have a great time at the Halloween Dance even if not in costume.

Winning first place in the individual costume contest was Brian Joyce as a scarecrow.

Jessica Miller traveled all the way back to the Seventies to get her "far out" costume.

Dinner for Two Anyone? Amber Moon, Angie May, and Hershena Hanshaw took the chair right out from under you with this get up.

Bill Stone, Renee Brewer, and Bart Williams were inducted into Pikeville College's Athletic Hall of Fame.

Two of the many who enjoyed the Homecoming dance were Nick Smith and Jerrica Blevins.

Opening

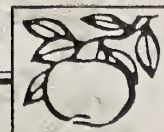

Homecoming '98 saw three new Hall of Fame members, the crowning of a new queen, and the traditional buffet and dinner at the Landmark.

The opening event of the 1998 Homecoming weekend was the Athletic Hall of Fame induction ceremony in Booth Auditorium Saturday morning. Bill Stone, Renee Brewer, and Bart Williams were inducted. Also, for the first time in Pikeville College history, a women's team was honored at the ceremony. Members and coaches of the 1987-'88 KIAC championship Lady Bears team were part of the ceremony. The honorees were also recognized before the Homecoming basketball games.

Between games, Beth Meade was crowned 1998 Homecoming queen by new president Hal Smith and 1997 Homecoming queen Andrea Anderson Hall. Homecoming festivities came to an end with a buffet dinner and dance at the Landmark Restaurant, where students, faculty, and alumni gathered for an evening of relaxation and fun before returning to the demands of the real world.

*Clarance Moore and Danielle

These ladies are trying to catch up on a few last-minute homework assignment while enjoying the sun.

Warm weather brings everyone outdoors after a cold winter. Many times classes are even taught outside, so students and faculty alike can enjoy the weather. During their free moments, students often sit on the benches doing homework or daydreaming about what they will be doing after class. The courtyard beside the Derriana seems to be the popular place for everyone to soak up a few rays of sunshine before, during, or after class.

Dr. John Howie even finds time in his busy class schedule to have class by the Derriana.

Phonathon: A Huge Success

With the help of many volunteers, the 1998 Phonathon was a huge success. This year's total exceeded $135,000 far surpassing last year's total. There were more than 160 volunteers who helped raise the money for PC's scholarship fund. These volunteers ranged from alumni, friends, business leaders, Pikeville College faculty and staff to students. As Hal Smith said, "Pikeville College is privileged to have so many caring friends who are willing to support and uplift its students."

Doug and Judith Hinkle, alumni, called people who went to the Pikeville College Academy and Training School.
